A Mysterious Case

EL PASO TEX Sept 1 ... capture of the robbers at Dai... Deming N M has ... railroad circles through out the country and inquiries are constantly pouring in from all parts of the country It is ... from here and ... thing is a hoax The ... to investigate the matter ... just been received

While to day has ... ularly new in relation to the story surrounding the reported ... bank near here there ... within the ... startling fa ... United States Marshal Wi... he claimed to ... absence and while ... that has gone as ... numbers of the gang ... it begins to look as ... in pastor, if not ... authorities have ... munication ... along the road ... the subject are ... mysterious But there ... So it is easy to discern ... here this man ... Marshal Williams. This conclusion only deepens the mystery

How this unknown ... should come into the possession of the official papers and passes of the marshal is yet to be solved His actions here were anything but those of a bright detective Instead of reporting to the local authorities and acting as the emergencies of the case seem to require he took himself to a small lodging house and never emerged from his room during the entire day His conduct in refusing to have his wounded hand dressed is strange to say the least In the meanwhile no sign of the captured robbers have been seen hereabouts There are several telegrams for Marshal Williams awaiting him at the West ... Union Telegraph office, but their contents are locked within the breasts of the operators It is stated to-night that an officer from Paris, Texas, from which place the alleged Williams claimed to have come will arrive to-morrow and he will likely be of great service in unravelling the mystery As at remains to-night the whole affair is one of conjecture but there is something radically wrong somewhere

Not Officially Authorized

BUZZARD'S BAY, Sept 16.—Editor E. S Morse of Indianapolis was the only caller at Gray Gables to-day Mr Cleveland's attention was called to published reports regarding his attitude in relation to his modification of the tariff plank in his forthcoming letter of acceptance. The ex-president said that newspapers had no ground whatever for such a statement and no one had been authorized to forecast such a theory

Mrs. Harrison's Condition Improved

LONG LAKE, Sept. 16.—The physicians returned to the hotel from Mrs. Harrison's cottage at about 1 o'clock and each expressed himself as gratified at the result of this morning's operation Dr Dougherty said that at the previous operation the entire amount of fluid was not removed, as it was then feared that she could not stand the ordeal Though there has been an appreciable increase in the amount of fluid since the last operation, Mrs Harrison's condition this morning was such as to warrant the removal of the remaining fluid, which was accomplished with less shock than before. After the operation the patient rested quietly and on the whole, her condition is somewhat improved It is now learned that there is no immediate danger of a fatal termination of the disease and Dr Dougherty will go to New York this afternoon and will not return unless specially called

Warlike Indians

WASHINGTON, Sept 16.—The commissioner of Indian affairs to day received a telegram from Agent Bennett at the Choctaw Nation in which he states that there are over 200 Jones men congregated two miles south of McAllister, who express dissatisfaction with the peace agreement made last Tuesday and declare a determination not to abide by it. Agent Bennett adds that the situation has again become critical and last night 100 Jones men heavily armed demanded the release of two ... who had surrendered to the authorities, but were warned off by the Indian police Unless the armed forces disband to-day Agent Bennett says that he will be constrained to order military aid from Fort Reno, which post has been directed to hold troops in readiness.

THE WAR NOW OVER

SOUTH MCALISTER, I T Sept 16.—All is again quiet in the Choctaw nation Through the exertions of Agent Bennett and the chiefs of both factions, the trouble has again blown over and the armed forces have dispersed The prisoners have been turned over to the governor and will be placed in jail in Gaines county to be held there for trial It looked much like war until 4 o'clock this afternoon when an agreement was reached The men who were camped near here have gone home

Nevada Bolsters a Goldbacker

WINNEMUCCA, Nev, Sept 16.—The second convention of the silver party was held here to-day for the purpose of instructing its delegates for Weaver and Field Senator Stewart in an address to the convention declared both President Cleveland and Harrison had disregarded the respective platforms after election and used their power to demonetize silver He said to vote for either Harrison or Cleveland was to vote for the ending of the paramount industry of Nevada. Weaver was the only presidential candidate whose position on the silver question harmonized with Nevada interests. He declared he would vote for Weaver

The platform adopted instructs the electors to vote for Weaver and Field for president and vice president and endorses Senator Stewart for United States senator and F G Newlands for congressman

...ane Telegraphers' Excursion

DENVER, Sept. 16.—The members of the Old Time Telegraphers' association arrived here this morning from Omaha and were escorted to the Brown Palace hotel After breakfast, Mayor Platt Rogers delivered an address of welcome to the old timers, to which A H Blue of Chicago replied on behalf of the telegraphers. During the day the party was driven about the city and to night visited the theaters. To-morrow they will make the trip around the Loop near Georgetown, and in the evening will start for their homes

A VAIN FRIENDSHIP

ALBANY Sept 16—A committee sent by the national Democratic committee composed of Hon Nelson Smith E Ellery Anderson and Edward F McSweeney, called on Commissioner Peck, of the state bureau of labor statistics this afternoon and labored with him for over an hour to secure the names of the manufacturers reporting to him the effect of the tariff on their respective industries They also asked to see the individual returns, but Mr Peck held to his original statement that he would show nothing but what was contained in his full annual report which was hardly what the committee was after

Mr Smith acted as spokesman and when Mr Anderson interrupted Commissioner Peck said that if Mr Anderson did not keep quiet he would refuse to have anything to do with the committee He would not recognize Mr Anderson in any way The cross fire between Mr Peck and Anderson at times was very hot, the latter telling the former not to be insulting Finally A R Smith read a list of questions regarding the preparation of the tariff report, which he said if answered, would satisfy the committee

Mr Peck said most of the questions could be answered by a reference to his report but he, himself volunteered no answer to any of the questions The upshot of the matter was that the committee left for New York late this afternoon without finding out anything at all

ENCOURAGING

The Cholera Situation Shows a Decided Improvement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. One new case of cholera and thirty cases of plain stomach ache were reported to the board of health to day. The case believed to be genuine cholera was that of Edward Hoppe of 1625 Madison avenue. As in each of the other cases there is no evidence to show how the disease was contracted President Wilson said to-day "The situation is certainly encouraging. Secondary cases are to be expected There has been none except in the case of the Beck family There is little doubt that Mr. Beck had the disease and recovered, and that his wife, who died, contracted the disease while taking care of him Beck's case was never reported to the board Had it not been for his wife's death the fact that he had the disease would never have been known

It was suggested to President Wilson that there might be similar cases in the city, that in the worst epidemics of cholera the percentage of deaths is not more than fifty and in this city there have been seven deaths out of the eight cases known President Wilson thought it was possible that there might have been cases where the patient recovered which have not been reported

The suspected cases in the city now are Peter Callahan 618 East Forty fourth street and Edward Hoppe, 1625 Madison avenue Mary Conerty 692 Second avenue, is still in the reception hospital and is believed to be recovering

On Thursday night Dr Edson personally visited each of the houses where cholera has appeared and examined everyone of the tenants. He found no one sick and no indication of any secondary cases. Though the disease has made no headway, the authorities are still devoting all their time to preparing for anything that may happen. The board of health was in almost continuous session to-day Twenty five additional doctors were appointed medical inspectors

Quarantine is maintained at all the houses where cases of cholera have occurred In no case do the tenants or neighbors appear to be alarmed A strict quarantine is kept on the Smith family at 292 Second avenue, from which house Mary Conerty was taken on Thursday night They are confined to their rooms and are not allowed to receive visitors. All food for the family is supplied through the doctors in charge The house at 221 East Thirty first street, where the girl worked has been disinfected but it not guarded

Christian Vortag Rosa Kohut, Sarah Shitzler and Lena Shitzler, the four girls who came in the Friesland and who are suspected of having brought the cholera to the Loefinger family are all well but have been taken to the Willard Parker hospital as suspects and they will be watched there

There was much relief at quarantine when the Bohemia, the last emigrant ship coming from Hamburg, reported only eleven deaths aboard on the voyage Her surgeon attributes them to inflammation of the stomach and bowels, but Dr Walser, who inspected the ship this afternoon, believes that the disease was unquestionably cholera. Dr. Walser said that he has no confidence in the efficacy of carbolic acid to destroy cholera germs. Dr Nash was left aboard to superintend fumigation and disinfection On the other ships Dr Walser reported

Heligoland Supplied with bichloride and ordered disinfection of forecastle and washing of clothing

Moravia—All is well one case of measles

Scandia—All well disinfection and washing continued

Normannia—Baggage removed and disinfected under direction of Dr Sanborn

Wyoming—All well

Rugia—Vessel thoroughly cleaned and disinfected one consumptive patient on board too weak to be removed

New Hampshire—Cabin passengers extremely well satisfied vessel supplied with everything that is needed every facility for comfort of from 200 to 400

The passengers from the Normannia detained at quarantine at Fire Island were released today and came to the city About forty of them travelled over the Long Island railroad and the others were brought to the Hoboken pier of the Hamburg company by the steamer Cephalus Among them were Senator McPherson F S Godkin, A M Palmer Lottie Collins, F Wood Newmann, honorary commissioner at large of the World's Fair, Fred F W Taylor, Lincoln Nebraska and W C Furst and wife, Denver

REVIEW OF TRADE.

R G Dun & Co's Weekly Commercial Summary

THE HEAVIEST TRADE KNOWN

The Cholera Scare Powerless to Check the Current of Business The Outlook ... the Money Supply Ample

NEW YORK Sept 16 R G Dun & Co's Weekly ... says

Cholera has laid its ... business of New York ... Cars are crowded with passengers and streets ... merchandise ... week ... ago ... the heaviest trade ever ... progress The ... increases almost ... for full trial ... disregard disaster ... cordially ... But many people are afraid and all other people will be afraid and consequently in speculative markets the selling of stocks has been quite heavy and the decline in prices have advanced about ... per share for all the active list Money is in ample supply and the demand from the interior is less than usual at this season but large amounts are held out of the loan market by people who are looking for exceptional opportunities to buy cheaply

There has been much talk about poor ... as an excuse for low prices of breadstuffs and cotton But the fact is the enormous stocks brought over from last year afford a sufficient reason for exceedingly low prices Receipts of wheat at the principal western points in four days of this week have been 5 411 888 bushels while the Atlantic exports have only been 1 067 250 bushels and it is not strange that the price has declined ¾ of a cent At 77⅞ cents wheat is lower than it ever has been in New York except in two days in 1894

Corn has declined 1½ cents in sympathy, but it is also the fact that western advices regarding the growing crop are more favorable. Oats have fallen half a cent and lard is a shade weaker In cotton there has been heavy selling and September options are below 7 cents, though the price for spot cotton is unchanged Oil has declined a half cent, but coffee is ⅛ stronger

At Boston trade in dry goods is unusually large for September and the market for print cloths is almost bare, while cotton goods are sold far ahead of production and in blue ... goods some ... are ... Woolen mills are well supplied with orders and the distribution is remarkably full Boot and shoe shops are crowded with orders and leather is active with some kinds of finished uppers higher in price

At Philadelphia trade in dry goods is the most satisfactory for many years and the ... manufacturers are busy. Western and southern buyers are liberal in their purchases and in dress goods especially an increased trade is expected. Wool is in fair demand Tobacco improves and trade in chemicals is active, especially in disinfectants

At Pittsburg the iron trade improves with ... demand, though Bessemer pig is ... Window glass works are running, but the Monongahela coal miners are idle because of a difference about wages. Trade at Cleveland is good in most lines and fair in dry goods, groceries and drugs, with iron in better demand and crockery active. Retail trade at Cincinnati is quiet but the wholesale ... an increase of 20 per cent over last year At Detroit orders for freight cars exceed the capacity of the works for months to come and trade prospects are favorable

At Chicago business increases and nothing adverse appears although some decrease is seen in receipts of wheat, rye, barley, cheese, dressed beef and 50 per cent. in lard and wool compared with last year, while in flour, corn, oats, cured meats, butter, cattle and hogs considerable increase appears. Trade at Milwaukee is brisk and at Omaha dull. A generous fall trade is expected at St Louis if pestilence does not interfere and at Kansas City business is satisfactory and receipts of grain and cattle large. At all western points collections are reported very good Trade at Louisville is improving, at Nashville fair and at Little Rock satisfactory, while at Montgomery and at Galveston the late cotton crop causes slow collections, though trade otherwise improves. At New Orleans business is only fair and money is in strong demand but cotton is lower while sugar and rice are active and strong. Iron is more steady, the output Sept 1, being only 151,018 tons against 155,196 Aug. 1, and unsold stocks have been reduced about 63,000 tons. The demand for structural iron is very encouraging and plate mills are well supplied, but quotations are variable and bar iron is unstable Copper and tin are lower, lead steady In dry goods there has been a noticeable increase in the number of buyers and the market is more nearly bare of woolen goods than it has been for years, the medium worsteds and the serge trades having the preference There is a heavy demand for cottons, and medium bleached goods are higher with browns firm Carpets are stronger, and many mills demand an advance of 2½ cents.

Money has been steady at 4 per cent., while foreign exchange has fallen so far that exports of gold are unprofitable Merchandise exports fall below last year, as is natural because shipments were then abnormal, the decrease in two weeks at New York, being 20 per cent. The Treasury has added $1,000,000 gold and $600,000 silver to its stock while putting out $600,000 additional paper. Here as in all parts of the country, the supply of money is ample for legitimate needs, and the shrinkage of speculation is helpful as regards the possibility of monetary pressure later. Respecting the cholera it is well to remember that sanitary precautions are more thorough than ever before, and at most foreign cities have sufficed to prevent the spread of the disease

The business failures during the last seven days number for the United States 154, Canada 28 total 182, as compared with 175 last week, 176 the week previous to the last and 239 for the corresponding week of last year

Southwestern Wool Growers Association

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M, Sept 16.—The first annual session of the Southwestern Wool Growers' association convened in the opera house, Albuquerque this morning with about 400 delegates present, California, Utah Colorado, Kansas, Wyoming Arizona and New Mexico being liberally represented. A Vice-presidential Substitute.

WASHINGTON Sept 16. Chairman Edson, of the local committee on arrangements, today received the following dispatch from Vice-president Morton, who is at his summer place, Rhine Cliff N Y "Will leave for Washington to morrow or Sunday and will hold myself in readiness for any required duty during the encampment"

This prompt response insures the carrying out of the programme as arranged Mr Morton, as far as possible, will endeavor to take the president's place

Hawaiian Cabinet Crisis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—Advices from Honolulu by the steamer state that the legislature passed a vote of no confidence in the ministry, who thereupon resigned. The queen had not named a new cabinet up to the time the steamer sailed.

The Mockingbird on Washing Day.

A saucy mockingbird tries to rule with sovereign sway my neighbor's dooryard So domineering has he become that he appears regularly every Monday morning when the family washing is being hung to dry Near at hand he alights on a bough and sings jubilantly He tilts and courtesies and fairly gurgles with ecstatic gushes as the white garments go up in varied array to float in the breeze. But when the red Bandanna handkerchiefs of the men are pinned flapping to the line, suddenly his ecstatic note changes, his jubilant trill ceases him and his voice, but lately full of melody, becomes that of an unmistakable scold He bristles, he blusters, he pours forth defiant ... at the very top of his voice And at last he retreats in high dudgeon, nor will he return while the objectionable red flags flutter from the line—San Diego Cor Christian Union

The Camel's Bite

The camel alone of all ruminants has incisor teeth in the upper jaw which, with the peculiar structure of his other teeth, make his bite, the animal's first and main defense, most formidable The skeleton of the camel is full of proofs of design Notice, for example the arched backbone, constructed in such a way as to sustain the greatest weight in proportion to the span of the supports. A strong camel can bear 1,000 pounds weight, although the usual load in Yemen is not more than 600 pounds—Rev S M Zwemer in Christian Intelligencer

Willing to Pay, But

At a certain fashionable bazaar a short while ago a gentleman asked for a cup of coffee and inquired the price The lady who served it, and who was the daughter of an earl, took a sip out of the cup and said, "A guinea if you please"

He then put down the guinea and said, "Thank you but would you mind giving me a clean cup?"—London Tit-Bits.

Cigarmakers Home

It is now believed and hoped that Colorado Springs will secure the national home of the cigarmakers union. On Thursday the location committee of the International union was in the city for the purpose of selecting a site. This committee is composed of A Strasser of Buffalo, M Cannon of Cleveland and Mr Broders of Denver Accompanied by Secretary Buckman of the chamber of commerce and local members of the union they visited several favorable sites that have been offered The committee was very favorably impressed with Colorado Springs, and as their report will come pretty near settling the matter it is thought Colorado Springs has a good chance The committee will report within thirty days but final action will not be taken for nearly a year yet.

The committee states that the union proposes to spend about $40,000 on the first buildings erected and would have 200 or 300 inmates in a year or two. The union has a fund on hand at the present time of $120,000.

Knights of Pythias.

The last day of the gathering of Knights of Pythias at Manitou was spent in the pursuit of pleasure. In the morning a special train took about two hundred and fifty knights and their ladies to Green Mountain Falls There the day was spent in picnicking in the groves, rowing on the lake and otherwise enjoying the delights of the beautiful resort.

The return to Manitou was made early in the evening and after the knights and ladies had dined and refreshed themselves after the dust of travel, they repaired to Wheeler hall where a grand ball was given in their honor by the people of Manitou The floor was covered with dancers, nearly one hundred couples taking part.

The knights began leaving last night and by to-morrow probably the last of them will have departed. This meeting of the grand lodge has been one of the most pleasant and profitable in the history of the order in Colorado and while the knights will carry away pleasant memories of Manitou the city of that town will retain pleasant memories of the visit of the knights

Elsewhere we reprint from the London Times an article which gives a good idea of the feeling which prevails among many Englishmen in regard to the proposed international monetary conference. The article takes a broad and evidently a careful, albeit somewhat one-sided view of the subject. No one can have any idea but that England will act in this matter in strict accordance with what seems to be to her own interest, as any other nation would do under similar circumstances. If she consents to any changes in her monetary system it is certain that it will not be from any friendly feeling towards the United States, or the producers of silver in Colorado or elsewhere. It will be because a pressure is brought to bear upon her which affects her commercial interests in India and other countries. There may be enough gold in the world for England's own use, but can she not see that there is not enough for all the nations, nor even for those which are most dependent upon her? The following item, also from The Times, is an evidence of the agony it which prevails in India:

CALCUTTA, Aug. 17.—A public meeting to consider the currency question has been held at Madras, in which several influential official and non-official personages took part. It was resolved that a branch of the Currency Association should be founded, that the government should be asked to appoint a commission to inquire into the question of a gold standard for India, and that, having regard to the alarming condition of affairs and the danger of a crisis, the government be moved to say at once what steps they propose to take in order to allay the panic which already exists throughout the country.

England cannot successfully establish the gold standard in India in answer to this appeal, because she cannot supply the enormous amount of gold which would be necessary to accomplish this. Nor could any other country in the world spare the gold for this purpose. The attempt to supply gold in place of the silver coinage of India would result in world-wide panic and disaster. It is upon those facts that the silver men base their hopes of England's action in the coming conference. Not that she wants to help silver, not that it will be a good thing for England alone, but that as the center of the British empire and as the monetary metropolis of the world she must do something, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that she will choose the lesser of what appear to her as two evils.

For some time past Dr. Pasteur, the eminent French specialist, has been experimenting for the production of a vaccine for cholera. Lately he has believed himself to be successful, but though his new specific was a success when applied to the lower animals he was not able to find any man who was willing to allow the fearful first experiment to be made upon his own person. It was therefore announced that an attempt would be made to secure a subject from Siam. At this juncture a possible martyr to the cause of humanity was found in the person of a correspondent of that journal which has already accomplished so many notable things, the New York Herald. He presented himself to the Paris physicians, received a double dose of the untried virus and started to expose himself in the plague stricken city of Hamburg, after having described his experiences and sensations for the benefit of The Herald readers. Such journalism is not national of course, but it is the journalism which benefits the world. In striking contrast to it is the effort on the part of another of the New York papers to block through the quarantine in New York harbor in order to give its readers exclusive news of the post ships. The one act was in the long and honorary spirit which counts everything as news which will sell well, while the other is of the spirit of heroism and martyrdom. All honor to the latest hero of the newspaper world. The people of Europe and America will watch the result of his fearful risk with interest and hope that he may not pay for a lesson to mankind with his own life.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. John H. Gregg, D. D.

It is to be regretted that most good people read so few books that are adapted directly to minister to the deeper spiritual life. It is a too common fault to allow the most slight and ephemeral productions the newspaper read to-day and forgotten to-morrow, the magazine, some common-place novel to occupy the time that is given to reading and leave no opportunity for the best reading. Every person who wishes to make the most of himself and to do the best work of which he is capable should take care to make himself familiar with what De Quincy calls the literature of power, that is the books which kindle lofty aspirations and feed great resolves and strengthen the will and develop the whole moral nature. Says Professor Tyndall: "It is in vain I think to separate the moral and emotional nature from the intellectual. Let a man but observe himself and he will, if I mistake not, find that in nine cases out of ten, moral or immoral considerations, as the case may be, are the motive force which push his intellect into action. The reading of the works of Carlyle, Emerson and Fichte, neither of them friendly to the scientific spirit, carried me victoriously through mathematical studies, made me what I have become."

Such testimony as this is very striking and suggestive. I hope that it may lend weight to the plea which I am making for more reading of the books which appeal to the ethical and religious nature, the deepest that is in man.

It would be well if we would all devote at least all the time that we spare in reading on Sundays to reading of this sort. Perhaps I may be able to render a valuable service to some of my readers if I offered a little list of books, most of them popular enough in their character, a few suited to tax the mind somewhat more severely, but all suited to direct and inspire to the noblest and most useful living. There is a vast number now of attractively written and most stimulating books of this kind. They ought to have a wider perusal than they do obtain. My counsel to all who desire to enlarge, strengthen and enrich the spiritual nature would be to read every year the life of some wise and good man or woman; a volume of sermons of some great preacher; to become familiar with some great poet; to read some book of ethical discussion; some book in theology; and some book which will give a large outlook on the kingdom of God and the progress it is making in this world. Let me suggest now a half dozen or so books under each of these headings:

I. Biography.
1. The Life of Charles Kingsley.
2. The Life of David Livingstone by W. G. Blaikie.
3. The Life of Martin Luther by J. Kostlin.
4. The Life of R. W. Emerson by Cabot.
5. Charles Darwin by his son.
6. Louis Agassiz by his wife.
7. Dorothea Dix by Francis Tiffany.
8. Oberlin.
9. Michael Angelo by Grimm.
10. Maurice, F. D., by his son.

II. Sermons.
1. Phillips Brooks.
2. H. W. Beecher.
3. Horace Bushnell.
4. Channing.
5. Cardinal Newman.
6. Munger.
7. Dr. Dale.
8. Mozley.
9. A. P. Peabody.

III. Poetry.
1. Browning.
2. Tennyson.
3. Whittier.
4. Lowell.
5. Longfellow.
6. Mrs. Browning.
7. Emerson.
8. Wordsworth.
9. Shakespeare, (especially the plays of his last period.)

IV. Books on Ethics.
1. Marcus Aurelius.
2. Cousin's Lectures on the True, the Beautiful, and the Good.
3. Mark Hopkins' The Law of Love and Love as a Law.
4. Paul Janet's The Theory of Morals.
5. Lecky's History of European Morals.
6. President Porter's Elements of Moral Science.
7. J. T. Bixby's The Crisis in Morals.
8. Washington Gladden's Lectures on the Lord's Prayer.
9. Dr. Washburn's Sermons on the Ten Commandments.
10. Martensen's Ethics.

V. Theology.
1. Washington Gladden's Burning Questions.
2. Washington Gladden's Who Wrote the Bible?
3. Ladd's What is the Bible?
4. Le Conte's Evolution and Its Relation to Religious Thought.
5. Rev. A. V. G. Allen's Continuity of Christian Thought.
6. Butler's Analogy.
7. Duman's The Theistic Argument.
8. Prof. Fisher's The Grounds of Theistic and Christian Belief.
9. Prof. Asa Gray's Natural Science and Religion.
10. Dr. Pressensé's A Study of Origins.
11. Martineau's A Study of Religion.
12. Geo. F. Wright's Logic of Christian Evidences.
13. John Fiske's Idea of God.
14. John Fiske's Destiny of Man.

VI. Books on the History and Progress of the Kingdom of God in the World.
1. Stanly's History of the Jewish Church.
2. James Freeman Clarke's Events and Epochs in Religious History.
3. James Freeman Clarke's Ten Great Religions.
4. Prof. G. P. Fisher's History of the Christian Church.
5. Philip Smith's The Students Ecclesiastical History.
6. Canon Farrar's The Early Days of Christianity.
7. Pressensé's Early Years of Christianity.
8. Lilhorn's Conflict of Christianity with Heathenism.
9. Professor Fisher's Beginnings of Christianity.
10. Professor Fisher's Reformation.
11. Tulloch's Leaders of the Reformation.
12. Brace's Gesta Christi.
13. Dr. Storr's Divine Origin of Christianity.

VII. [illegible]
1. F. W. Robertson's Ways of the Spirit.
2. Row's Contemporary Evidences.
3. Tayler's The Great Value and Success of Foreign Missions.
4. Taurie's Ane Contribution of Foreign Missions to Science and Human Well Being.
5. Emerson's Essays.
6. Carlyle's works.
7. Lubbock's The Pleasures of Life.
8. Blaikie's The Wisdom of Christ.
9. The Imitation of Christ by Thomas A Kempis.
10. Epictetus.
11. The Confessions of St. Augustine.
12. Jowett's Plato.
13. Professor Fisher's Nature and Method of Revelation.
14. Bushnell's Moral Uses of Dark Things.
15. Auseley's Journal.

It will be evident that this list is a very incomplete one. In each department are scores of good books many of which might as well or better have been named than those which have been mentioned. My purpose will have been accomplished if I shall have opened a way to the reading on Sunday of some seventy-five books, everyone of which I know to be worth reading, few of which are expensive to purchase, books which if read will bring, I am sure, much light and comfort and help upon the pathway of life.

The International Conference.

London Times.

The prime minister, the first lord of the treasury, and the chancellor of the exchequer met yesterday at the foreign office a deputation representing the advocates of bimetallism in this country, who came to urge upon the government that the overtures for a conference on the silver question, foreshadowed in President Harrison's recent communications to congress at Washington, should be favorably received. After Sir William Houldsworth and other advocates of the commercial, industrial, agricultural, and labor interests, which have committed themselves to the movement "rehabilitating silver," had stated their views, Mr. Goschen briefly explained the position of her majesty's ministers. They have accepted the proposal of the American government "to examine what measures, if any, can be taken to increase the use of silver in the currency systems of nations," but they have done so with "an open mind." No country by entering into the conference is pledged, as Mr. Goschen was careful to point out, to a particular settlement of the controversy, or to any settlement at all. It is for this reason, most of all, that we regret the course which the government have taken, and in which they appear to be playing into the hands of the politicians in power at Washington. If it were possible by the protocols of any conference to establish a permanent parity between gold and silver in the principal marts of the civilized world, the object, we admit, would be worth a deliberate effort and a serious sacrifice, but the achievement is as impracticable as to bring it to pass that a pint pot shall hold a quart. Mr. Grenfell, who has the courage of his bimetallist opinions, appears to think that the old ratio of 15½ to 1 can be so established, in the face of changes in production and demand, by international agreement and national legislation. Mr. Samuel Montagu and other practical men are more cautious. They desire to set up a new ratio approaching somewhat more closely to the existing relations between the two metals, but still expect to the incalculable fluctuations of price in a market where the limits of the cheapest production have never yet been practically ascertained. The Republican party in the United States do not believe in the free coinage of silver. If they were to cast in their lot with that policy, which has lately met with a sharp check in congress, they would lose the support of the sound business communities in the eastern states, and for this President Harrison and his colleagues are not prepared. But, as the demand for free silver is a potent factor in politics in the south and west, the Republicans, seeing that they are safe from any immediate silver legislation, think it wise to hold out hopes of obtaining some advantages for the cheaper metal by negotiations with other powers. These are very obvious electioneering tactics, but it is to be regretted that our own government, with an election also in view, should have agreed to a conference, the effect of which can only be to keep the silver market and the whole question of the currency in an unsettled state for a long time to come.

We can understand how great has been the pressure brought to bear upon her majesty's ministers by the government of India, from which a new memorandum on the subject has been recently received, and which looks eagerly for any measures that may give even temporary relief to the Indian finances by raising the exchange value of the rupee. To this pressure is added the demand for the rehabilitation of silver which is urged by the trade of Lancashire, by the representatives of British agriculture, and by other home interests, including, as was stated yesterday, all the chambers of commerce, just now in a somewhat depressed mood, and many of the trade unions. It is easy to see that Mr. Balfour, who is a pronounced bimetallist, and member for one of the divisions of Manchester, was destined to prove stronger than Lord Salisbury, who is doubtful, and Mr. Goschen, who is not wholly sound, on this subject. But what can the bimetallists expect to gain within what practical men must perceive to be the inexorable conditions of the experiment? Is anything likely to be done by international agreement that will give a greater stimulus to the process of rehabilitating silver than was done when the United States recently began to coin silver on a large scale? The Continental powers have hitherto refused to be persuaded by the arguments addressed to them from Washington that they should improve the situation by opening their mints to the unlimited coinage of silver. The experience of silver coinage in the United States under the existing law is not in itself likely to convert them. The Bland-bill, of course, sent up the price of silver and fluttered all the markets of the world, but, after violent fluctuations, which did far more harm than good to every interest, the value of the metal fell to the lowest point it ever touched, while the masses of coined bullion held by the American treasury, and unusable as currency without a disturbance of business that politicians dare not face, constitute a permanent danger. The only new element that can be imported into the question is the action of the British government, and, by accepting President Harrison's invitation to the proposed conference, her majesty's ministers give encouragement to the hope that the powers can now approach the problem with larger means of operating and with greater confidence of success.

The chancellor of the exchequer, in his speech in the city just before Christmas, suggested, by way of a concession to those who want to restore silver to its old position, that if other countries agreed to keep their mints open for silver coinage the British government might do something to meet their views. The Bank of England is empowered by its charter to keep one-fifth of the reserve in silver, and Mr. Goschen hinted that the bank might be urged to resort to this power, while, he added, the Indian mints would continue to coin silver freely. The American government had previously come to the conclusion that nothing was to be looked for from an international agreement, and had failed to elicit any promise of co-operation from the European powers, either in consequence of their committal to a good currency or owing to their remembrance of unfortunate dabbling with silver; but Mr. Goschen's overtures opened up a prospect of schemes which, though they were invariably destined to end in smoke, are capable of being turned to account on the other side of the Atlantic in the year of a presidential election. The resolution of her majesty's ministers to enter into the proposed conference at President Harrison's invitation will, of course, enable them to tell the government of India that they have done all that is possible, and that if no agreement can be arrived at, it is because [illegible] which the imperial government can make to the [illegible] of the question is slight. [illegible] During recent years the Indian rupee has been coining silver freely, so that no additional facilities are to be sought in that direction. The American government has accumulated an enormous sum in the Bland dollars. The European powers have refused to enter upon enlarged operations of silver coinage in view of these facts. Is it likely that, after the violent and disastrous fluctuations in the silver market since the artificial demand in America began, the European powers will be tempted to embark upon a similar policy by the mere fact that the British government will advise the Bank of England to hold part of the reserve in silver? Is it likely that the holding of one fifth in the reserve or less—say from three to four millions in silver—would produce an effect which the Bland legislation in the United States has failed to bring about? Is it likely that the bank, representing as it does the highest business interests of the country, would acquiesce in a [illegible] would diminish a serious extent the gold reserve, already proved by Mr. Goschen himself to be much too narrow? Is it likely that bimetallists either in America or on the continent would be satisfied with a concession, dangerous in itself, which the American double standard party have denounced beforehand as an empty "sham of a tinkering mockery?" Is it not certain that further concessions would be demanded and that, if refused, any possible agreement would be broken up, after we had done, perhaps, irreparable injury to our own well-tried system of the single standard and had merely plunged the silver market into a new series of fluctuations? These are questions that ought to be maturely considered before we pledge ourselves to anything in the coming conference. We can not now avoid being made to serve the turn of political wire-pullers and stock exchange speculators by our acceptance of President Harrison's invitation, but we can, at least, be careful not to go beyond the manifest and narrowly-defined boundaries of safety.

Keep Your Eye on Godey's.

There is every indication that Godey's Magazine for October, ready Sept. 15, will mark an era in periodical literature. This will no longer be known as Godey's Lady's Book, but, Godey's, America's First Magazine, Established 1830. In the first place, the magnificent work of art, "Godey's Idea of the World's Fair," which is to be presented to every purchaser of this number, is said to be so beautiful and artistic in design and coloring that everyone will want it. It is a faithful reproduction of one of W. Granville Smith's latest and greatest pictures, produced expressly for Godey's. The publishers guarantee that the magazine itself will be filled with surprises and beauties from cover to cover. First in the contents comes John Habberton's complete novel "Honey and Gall," a companion to "Helen's Babies," fully illustrated by Albert B. Wenzell. This is an idea first conceived by Godey's and now produced with brilliant success. Godey's fashions will be a most conspicuous and beautiful feature of the publication, there being, in addition to carefully edited descriptions and fashion articles, four exquisite plates produced in ten colors, and representing four of the leaders of New York society, attired in the latest Paris costumes. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher's "Home" department will be read by the women of America with delight, and all the magazine's old admirers will read with interest Albert H. Hardy's carefully written article on "Godey's Past and Present." Among the choice verses is the latest poem written by the late Josephine Pollard. John Habberton reviews all the books, and the whole forms such a rich literary feast that to examine a number of the new Godey's will mean to it irresistibly desire it.

Card Playing Among the Ancient Jews.

I do not know if the Jews were the inventors of card playing, but credit in that matter is given to them by some researches, and I am sure that the ancient Hebrews were passionately fond of gambling. Isaiah laments with the words, "Woe to those who are preparing a table to God" (Fortune, or the god of the gamblers), "and they fill a drink to Meni" (the paying teller, probably the banker, Meni meaning in Hebrew to number). To what game the venerable seer is alluding, whether to the royal baccarat or to the common poker, I do not know. But it is a matter of fact that at the time of the first temple every Jewish home was a Monte Carlo as regards betting and gambling.—Boston Transcript.

Poor Chollie.

Mrs. Younghusband, like every young wife, was very proud of her experiments in the art of cooking. One evening Chollie was asked to stay to supper, and it was one of the proudest moments in her life when Mrs. Younghusband handed him the plate of piping hot tea biscuit.

"You must really tell me what you think of them," she said, "for I made them myself."

"They are delicious," replied Chollie, in a vain attempt to say the proper thing. "In fact, they are so excellent that any one could see you must have had the recipe from the baker."—New York Evening Sun.

Mental Arithmetic in Our Public Schools

A knowledge of numbers is gained both by mental and written exercises Those whose school days have been passed for two decades or more will recall the fact that in the good old days mental drill was in vogue fully as much as written The gradual elimination of mental drill from the course of study has been a matter of regret with many who remember their exciting tussles with Colburn, Stoddard and other doughty champions of long ago It will please them to learn that mental arithmetic has been restored to its old rank of equal importance with written arithmetic in our schools The text book is Stoddard's New Intellectual Arithmetic and when properly taught it is better calculated than any other study to produce accurate and close discrimination to quicken strength and develop the reasoning powers and to enable the pupil to acquire a knowledge of under matters and things with greater ease The work is to be carefully conducted the attention being paid to the position of the pupil ring recitation the use of language correct in articulation pronunciation and construction No aimless or hurried solutions will be accepted By attention to these particulars these lessons become valuable exercises in address elocution grammar and logic

Are You Looking

For comfortable accommodations for the fall and winter? THE ALTA VISTA, Family Hotel is better prepared than ever to offer attractions to permanent boarders. Without any reflection upon any hotel or boarding house, the Alta Vista claims to fill a midway place to possess the best features of both and to afford greater privacy and independence greater comforts and conveniences than even good boarding houses can supply with all the annoyances and disturbing bustle of large transient and commercial hotels

Distinctive hotel features are made as little apparent as possible while much is introduced to add the homelike air of the house.

The house is modern with electric lights and bells elevator steam heat a table which has no superior heretofore and efficient service in all departments

We would be pleased to have everyone looking for comfortable accommodations call and inspect our rooms and learn of the advantages the house has to offer
